OUTCOMES

This course is designed to give students an introduction to: [1] what philosophers have thought about the connections between humanity and nature, [2] the basis of the environmental crisis in our time, and [3] some possible solutions to it. The course satisfies a requirement in the Philosophy, Politics, and Society track of the Philosophy major, as well as serving as an elective for other Philosophy, Geography, and Environmental Studies majors, as well as for students from other programs.

READINGS

All required readings will be made available either as handouts (in class), or on Blackboard. However, students will a particular interest in environmental studies are encouraged to obtain copies of some or all of the following books, from which many of the required readings will be drawn:

Aldo Leopold, Sand County Almanac (Ballantine)
Max Horkheimer & Theodor Adorno, Dialectic of Enlightenment (Stanford)
Dale Jamieson, Reason in a Dark Time (Oxford)
Herman Daly, Beyond Growth (Beacon)
Eileen Crist, Abundant Earth (Chicago)
Ramachandra Guha & Joan Martinez-Alier, Varieties of Environmentalism (Earthscan)

They can be obtained through special order from Shakespeare & Co, or from other bookstores. Many are also available for loan from the Hunter College Library, or from public libraries.
ASSIGNMENTS & GRADES

The following assignments, with their corresponding weight in the determination of final grades, are required: a First Essay (20%), a Midterm Examination (in-class, 20%), a Second Essay (20%), & a Final Examination (take-home, 40%). The First Essay can be rewritten to improve your grade. Exam & due dates for all assignments (subject to change), are given in the Schedule, below. Make-up exams or late assignments, without an agreed-upon extension, will be penalized by 1 letter grade (eg B to C).

ATTENDANCE & PARTICIPATION

Good attendance (missing no more than 4 classes, without valid excuses) is expected. Poor attendance may lower the final grade by 10%. Conversely, regular participation in class discussions may raise the final grade by 10%.
