Course Description and Objectives:

The European Union has been an attempt to create a unified federal system out of a disparate set of twenty-eight nation states, each with its own traditions. These traditions are deeply rooted in geographic considerations, including natural conditions such as topography, climate, and resources, and social conditions such as language, religion, and history. At the same time, the Union has been buffeted by strong external forces, economic, social, and political, that have been beyond the direct control of the central organization or the member states. The result has been an interaction of unifying and disuniting forces that have left the future of not only the Union, but several of its member states, a political question mark.

This course will examine challenges facing those forces, and their roots, in terms of the context of continental supranationalism and nation-state devolution, at continental, regional, and national scales, with selected case studies. The emphasis will be on the underlying factors affecting the Union, not on the development of its political institutions.

Learning Outcomes: To be able to

1. Identify, illustrate, and discuss geographic and climatological factors in the development of Europe.
2. Identify, illustrate, and discuss demographic, social, and cultural factors in the development of Europe.
3. Recognize and compare regional differentiation of all factors within the region.
4. Analyze and critique current policies involving these factors.

Assigned articles can be either directly linked through your Hunter Library account with the URLs provided, or will be placed on E-reserve in the library.

I will be communicating with you both in class and by Blackboard, so make sure your Blackboard account is active. I will not be responsible for bounce backs from your accounts, Please note that this has been a particular problem with transfers still using CUNY Community College accounts.
Grading:
The first part of the course, through week 8, will be largely lecture, the remainder discussion. Grading will be based on a midterm exam covering the first part of the course, participation in discussion throughout the course, and a research paper.

The research paper must be of at least 3000 words (12 pages, using Word default margins and 10, 11, or 12 pt. type.) It should include supplementary notes using any standard foot or endnote model, such as Chicago, Modern Language Association (MLA), or American Psychological Association (APA), and a separate bibliography in corresponding style. A timeline for the paper is provided below in the calendar section. You may choose any relevant topic you like (I tend make broad allowances here,) but all topics MUST be approved by me in advance, and Wikipedia IS NOT a quotable resource. Requirements for graduate attendees will be given separately.

Class participation will include knowing the content of readings and being prepared to discuss them in class.

The final grade will be developed from approximately 60% on the research paper, 25% on the midterm, and 15% on class participation.

An incomplete (IN) will be granted only under exceptional circumstances. A student must request the grade BEFORE the final class and present evidence of a satisfactory reason, as well as having done “C” work or better PRIOR to the filing of the incomplete; otherwise, the student will receive a grade of WU. Students who desire an IN will have to sign a Departmental completion contract with the instructor.

Credit/No credit (C/NC) will only be given if requested BEFORE the final class, and to receive it all prior work must have been completed.

There will be no extra credit assignments. Put the effort into the paper.

Classroom Electronics:
I permit the use of electronic recording devices and dictionaries during lectures. ALL other personal electronics should be turned off before coming into the classroom. This includes cell and smartphone, etc. A computer may be used FOR TAKING NOTES ONLY, but if what you are doing becomes a distraction to others around you, I will ask you to shut it down.

Other Notes:
I would strongly recommend all students check The Economist magazine online each week, particularly its Europe section. You can access it through the Hunter Library website http://www.economist.com/printedition/covers?print_region=76980
If you have time, periodically checking major newspapers should also prove useful. I’ll talk about this in class.

Well-behaved children are welcome at any time.

Except for changes that substantially affect grading, this syllabus is a guide for the course and is subject to change with advance notice. Any changes will be given in class and through Blackboard notification. This may be especially true of reading assignments, which may vary with new material that becomes available or the news.
