Peruse the journal; pick an article that interests you; write a one-page synopsis and appraisal; and prepare a 3-4 minute in-class presentation on the article that, among other things, summarizes its methodology.

Humanism

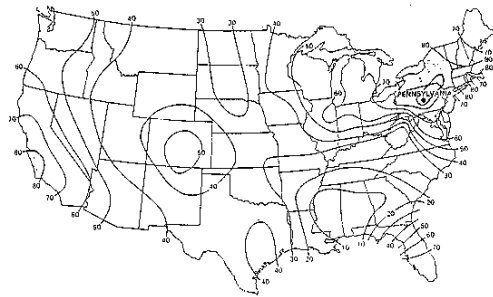

Philosophy: Any system of thought in which human interests, perceptions, values, and/or dignity are taken to be of primary interest.

Epistemology: Knowledge is obtained subjectively in a world of meanings created by individuals (perhaps with cultural inputs). What exists is that which people perceive to exist.

Paradigm: Exploration of individual worlds as revealed by interviews, questionnaires, diaries, ethnographies, observation, or other means.
